

Tim Stevens-Welsh is 36 years old and a member of the Colorado River Indian Tribes (Mohave).

I have been a CRIT legal advocate in CRIT Tribal Court and have been for the past 9 years. As an advocate I appear in legal proceedings (criminal, civil and Juvenile). I use my advocacy to give back and promote the well being and safety of our tribal members and community. I have also helped reform the restraining order procedure as well as the public records request policy while employed at CRIT tribal court.

I am currently involved with The 7g Foundations, which is a non-profit, and dedicates itself to become a resource for native youth throughout native America to showcase athletics and academics.

I currently volunteer my time to work with the Strong Hearted Native Women's Coalition. I believe in the powerful message and services this program provides, that is greatly needed in many of our communities, but most importantly to create awareness in our communities and beyond.

I have decided to run for crit tribal council to be apart of the solutions of the many issues that our reservation and people have endured from all aspects of; business; policy, legal, laws of the CRIT reservation and it's people.

I have the strength and integrity it will take to be a council member and fulfill this role with the crit people in mind and heart always.
